ACROSS the DESK

From the Mason County News, Havenswood, W. Va. In spite of nationwide publicity over the past several years, in spite of the fact that 35 state legislatures have passed laws designed to prevent these tragedies, sixteen more children suffocated inside refrigerators in 1955.

In the past ten years, 112 children over the nation have lost their lives through the impulse to hide in an abandoned refrigerator—the perfect, too perfect, hiding place. Hence the legislation making it a misdemeanor to should be a felony to throw out a refrigerator without removing hinges and doors. But, it should be remembered that not all of these children have died in discarded equipment on vacant lots or trash heaps. The kitchen refrigerator, empty and open for defrosting, is just as tempting when a little mischief game is on and mother has gone to the store or is talking on the phone. In many homes, this death trap may be on the back porch or even in the basement.

From the Mafala Tribune, Mafala, Alabama: One of the services performed by our canine friends for which the human race is indebted, is the work of dogs who lead the blind. Every nation-wide publicity over the past several years, in spite of the fact that 35 state legislatures have passed laws designed to prevent these tragedies, sixteen more children suffocated inside refrigerators in 1955.

General George C. Marshall says of West Point because his family and their congressman were on different sides of the political fence. Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts in the Saturday Evening Post "Upstairs I grant admit that his chance at the academy because his father and congressman did not see eye to eye politically."

There begins an article whose title explains its premise: "Take the Academic Test of Politics." The great majority of appointments to the service schools—eight out of ten in the case of West Point, and six out of ten in the case of Annapolis—are made by congressmen. And the resultant situation as Senator Kennedy says it is "shocking."

West and Annapolis appointments, or the right kind of appointments, are being made last year, which was fairly typical members of Congress were called to send sons to West Point. Out of 221 of the candidates were not filled because congressmen either neglected to make the appointments, or because they nominated candidates who could not qualify and all nominees out of an authorized list to accept's steadily used until now.

Recently, in Senator Kennedy's story, it was not the only problem the quality of personnel is not as "shocking" as a War Department study has shown that.

THE AMERICAN WAY

Now, Who's a "Free Rider"?

IN ENGLAND WITH MISS LAURA WILSON

May 6, 1956

Dear Folks,

Well, I'm about the weather. Listen to this! I am sitting in my easy chair at 10:00 a. m. with a sleeveless summer dress on. The upper half of the window is pulled down and the radiator is turned off. I will admit that I am quite accustomed to English central heating and, therefore, not as fond of 75° rooms as I used to be. However, there is not even one little goose bump on my arm. The three outside my window is in full bud while the bushes beyond are becoming quite green. The fields have been green ever since I got back to England. The banks of the river are just covered with daffodils. Now I have some beautiful red and yellow tulips which I bought in Durham Market Place yesterday from a very sweet little lady. The birds have been singing for weeks. In fact I am fully convinced that England is the place to be in the spring. It isn't hot, it isn't cold. And it always rains sometime between 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. so you can always be prepared. This means that you really should have an umbrella because raincoats are rather warm and sticky to wear around all day. You see, the sun shines all the time when it isn't raining. How clouds manage to come and go is beyond me. It is even more amazing that they should be so agile when one remembers that they have very little my tutor at a most propitious time.

1. Been to a debate at which my tutor displayed her Oxford training in a most amusing fashion and won hands down.

2. Been to hear the author of one of my text-books discuss the Cabinet of Queen Anne.

3. Been to the picture "The Importance of Being Earnest."

4. Discovered a true friend whom I had suspected before. Laurie told of "Patience" days asked me if I was going to be in "Pinafore" to be performed in June week (the equivalent of our Graduation week).

5. I told him I didn't know. Well it seems that he went to Brian Ashworth, so Brian approached me with a strong, silent air. I would say I felt more overwhelmed than I usually do after a proposal. I said a very hushed, "ah," and waited to get my hands on Laurie to see if he was the instigator of the plot. He was, so I thanked him.

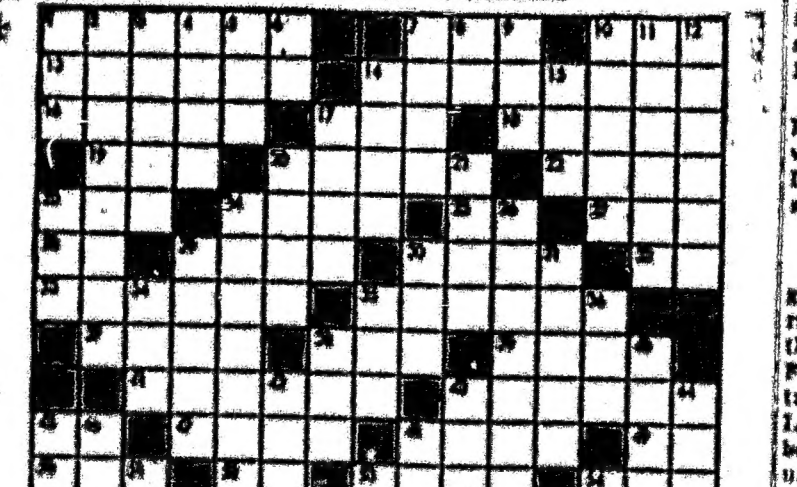

6. Been to church with the other Brian which caused rather a stir among other envious Methodist women.

7. Been to a play—"The Ideal Husband" by Oscar Wilde with Peter.

8. Entertained ten people at tea.

9. Been caught in the library by my tutor at a most propitious time.

TODAY'S meditation

Thursday, July 5

Read Luke 19:41-44

And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it.

(Luke 19:41)

FROM my hotel room I could see the shattered homes and empty streets of the "no man's land" that marked the dividing line between Jordan and Israel.

I felt that Christ must still be weeping over Jerusalem.

We have reason to believe that He is weeping over the strife and bitter enmity between Arab and Jew, and over the thousands of refugees huddled in tents and mud huts along the Jericho Road. Surely He weeps over all the sins of men, whether in Jerusalem or anywhere. They draw Him to the Way of Sorrows again.

Any "no man's land" is dangerous to mankind, but much more dangerous is the "no God's land" where pride, prejudice, selfishness, and lust for power hold sway. These cause weeping and prevent many from finding the joy of the new life in Christ.

The hope of a redeemed humanity everywhere is to allow Christ to make all things new in personal life and national life.

Prayer

Lord, forgive Thy children for their love of self. We pray for the redemption of persons.

We pray that the nations will seek Thy will and dedicate themselves to be used of Thee to pursue those things which make for peace. Redeem Thy world, O God, beginning with men. For the Redeemer's sake. Amen.

Thought for the Day

By walking in His spirit, it is our privilege to walk where Jesus walked.

—John D. Wolf (Indiana)

SUNDAY'S SERMON

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

FAITH

There is a story that a Mediterranean captain sailed his ship for the first time outside his inland sea to venture upon the great Atlantic.

But, unaccustomed as he was to the mighty ocean, he made the voyage without mishap and reached the outer bar of his destined port. And then he found that there was scant depth at the harbor mouth.

He was somewhat alarmed, but then was relieved by a message that came from the port authorities, assuring him that the returning tide would bear his vessel safely inside the harbor. He had never known such tides as those of which he was to learn, for the Mediterranean is a sea of small tides, but the old captain believed the story of the ocean's might, of the great tides that would raise the level of the waters of the harbor mouth.

And he was ready for the return of the tide and in due time he brought the ship to a safe berth in the deep and unimmoderate harbor.

Thus he trusted the word of fellow seamen, and was ready to move his ship with the turn of the tide. Self is the only hidden shoal that can shut men away from the blessed harbor that shines afar across the ocean of life. But faith brings the saving word that can guide them into the eternal haven where they are ever safe in the Father's love.

Next week end I am going to a Fulbright reception in London, at which His Royal Highness, the Duke of Edinburgh, is going to speak. I am rather EXCITED!

Last weekend I had a rather glorious time! Friday morning I raced with my suitcase to catch the London train. Ralph, the other Fulbright, panted up just before the train arrived. Off we went. In London we ate lunch together and before parting met Fran and Carol unexpectedly. At 5:15 we met again at Follenham Court Road, underground station, where we caught a subway for the Bank station, where we unexpectedly ran into Stan Lohmberg. At the Friends' International Center I had met Jane. What do you suppose? Here I was all dressed up fit to meet the queen, my pink dress, a new white hat for the occasion, white shoes white gloves.

WILTON MAN HAS MT. BLUE STATE PARK BROCHURE

Through his own generosity a Wilton Man has set a high precedent for State officials to follow in welcoming visitors to State Parks and camping sites. S. W. Hilton turned over to officials of the Maine State Chamber of Commerce a sample copy of a three color hand illustrated map of Mt. Blue State Park, containing rules and regulations governing use of the Park area, which he prepared and made available at his own expense.

Hilton, who heads the Woodworkers of Weld, and is a member of the State Chamber, said, "Park officials formerly lacked up instructions which were soon destroyed by weather, so I designed a map of the area of the Mt. Blue State Park, had the rules and regulations printed on the reverse side and presented them to the Custodian of the Park to be given to visitors at the entrance gate. The map clearly shows the sites available. I did this because I feel that difficulties in the present system lie not with the department but that the legislature has failed to appropriate sufficient funds to do the job properly."

Hilton looks forward to the time when visitors to all State Parks will be welcomed with attractive material made available by the state.

Two big statewide agricultural events are scheduled in Maine during July. The Maine Broom Festival will be held at Belfast on July 13 and 14, with the huge public barbecue on the final day at the City Park. The annual State Dairy Show is scheduled for Saturday, July 23 at Windsor Fair Grounds. Both 4-H club and adult dairymen will enter a total of perhaps 500 outstanding dairy animals. The public is invited to both events. Large crowds are expected.

Lloyd B. Lowell

BETHEL, MAINE

Q—Does the Federal government still distribute free surplus property to state and local units of Government? If so what kind of property?
A—Yes, the Federal government still distributes this surplus property when available to educational and public health agencies of state and local governments and to eligible non-profit health and educational institutions. During January, February and March this year, surplus property valued at $57,723,722, was so distributed. It included such items as buildings suitable for college dormitory or faculty housing; motor vehicles, hospital, school and office furniture; hand and machine tools; motion picture projectors; laboratory equipment; and school and office supplies. Included among the property transferred was school and hospital building sites, valued at more than $3 million.

Q—Do I have to own a farm outright in order to qualify for institutional surplus training under the Korean GI bill?
A—It is not necessary that you own the farm outright. But you must have full control of it, either by leasing the land, or having a management agreement or some other tenure arrangement.

Q—How fast is reforestation proceeding?
A—In addition to federal planting on government lands, the nation's forest industries planted about 240 million seedlings on their lands in 1955.

Q—Can you give me the actual difference between a Senator and a Congressman?
A—A United States Senator is an official of the United States Government. Insofar as his duty is concerned, he is NOT the Senator from a given state. He is supposed to legislate for all 48 states. It is for this reason that United States Senators are limited to two from each state, regardless of size or population. The official title for Congressmen is "Representative in Congress." He represents the people in his congressional district. Numbers range from one in Wyoming to 43 in New York, on a population basis.

Q—Who is credited with the idea of the Soil Bank Plan?
A—Henry Wallace, when he was Secretary of Agriculture is credited with the idea of the plan, which is taking crop land out of production for conservation purposes. Except for an appropriation and for authority for long term contracts, the law has been on the books for many years.

Q—Is it true that the $500,000,000 "prepayment" to farmers under the soil bank as proposed by President Eisenhower would be taken out of the 1957 income of farmers who agreed to come under the soil bank plan?
A—Yes. The President asked that $500,000,000 be appropriated for payments to farmers this year who agreed to adopt the plan this year, although too late to take their land out of production, the amount to be deducted from their 1957 payments. The House killed this feature of the bill, although providing for payments to farmers who could still meet soil bank contracts this year.

Q—Must the Secretary of Defense be a civilian?
A—Yes, the law so provides that he be named from civilian life by the President subject to approval by the Senate.

Q—Is silver regarded as a money standard?
A—No. It is regarded as a commodity which has had a wide range in price value ranging from 24 cents to $1.38 an ounce. For many years it has been more or less stabilized at a price of about 71 cents an ounce.

Q—What is the duty of the Comptroller General of the United States?
A—His duty is to approve all expenditures of money after the Congress has made money available for expenditure. He heads the General Accounting Office, an independent agency, which is the auditor of all the books of the government.

PONY LEAGUE NOTES

Bethel Ladies games coming up: Friday, July 4th, West Paris vs. Bethel at West Bethel, 8 P. M. Tuesday, July 10th, Bryant Pond vs. Bethel at West Bethel, 8 P. M. Last First League Games

Our Pony team traveled to Mechanic Falls last Tuesday evening and came out on the short end of the contest 11-4. We started off strong the first two innings scoring 3 runs each time, but our luck changed then and along with errors and walks we just couldn't start a rally again. Dana Bean pitched the first four innings allowing 3 hits but was free with walks, giving 3. He was relieved by Mel Jodrey who finished out the game. We out-hit McFalls 8 to 2 but couldn't get a single when we needed it. Doug Rice continued his fine sticking with a home run and two singles in four trips to the plate. Sawyer and Lenahan hit well for McFalls.

PAYMENT RATES FOR WOOL PROGRAM ANNOUNCED
 Maine sheep growers stand to benefit considerably under the rates announced for the 1955 Wool Incentive Program. Payments will amount to 44 percent of the dollar returns each producer received from the sale of shorn wool during the past marketing year. Payments on lambs will be 75 cents per hundred weight of live animals sold for slaughter. These payments are in addition to whatever the sheep growers were able to get for their wool and lambs. Details are available from county and state offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.
